Newsletter

In This Newsletter

In this month's newsletter, we're excited to highlight a selection of items designed for concealment and drug-reference clothing. These products can often be found online, in specialty head shops, and at popular retailers such as JD Sports.

Alongside clothing, ordinary household items marketed as Diversion Safes are also available. While these products can effectively hide valuables, they are more often used for concealing drugs.

I encourage each of you to do a google search for "Diversion Safes" and see what you find. From ChapStick to key fobs to hair scrunchies, anything can be modified to for concealment purposes. However, just because someone has an item that has a hidden compartment, does not always mean they are hiding something. So, don't assume anything!

Impact Council Members Highlight

Each month we will highlight our Impact Council members. As mentioned in the August newsletter, Impact Council members are Pryor students working to educate their peers about substance use. This month I want to introduce our Senior members.

Common "Stash Pocket" and Drug Reference Clothing

Used to vape and conceal vaping devices.

Contains stash pockets. Notice the two different logos. Also notice the similarities with the Grassroots logo.

Hats have stash pockets. Some have the seedling logo but some do not.

Clothing that has a built in rolling pad, stash pocket, and roach clip.

Dirty Ghetto Kids

Microdosing is taking a small dose of psychedelic hallucinogens or other drugs.

Cookies is a worldwide known cannabis brand.

ERRL is slang for any type of cannabis oil. "710" is another reference for oil. When upside down it spells "oil".

Clothing line that has several drug reference clothing.

Lean, also known as purple drank, sizzurp, barre, and Texas tea, among other names, is a concoction of cough syrup, soda, hard candy, and, in some cases, alcohol. It usually contains the opioid codeine and the antihistamine promethazine, which cause you to feel euphoric.

Usually (but not always) referenced with double stack cups and a purple liquid.

bape .com

DOES NOT HAVE STASH POCKETS OR A DRUG REFERENCE BRAND! DO NOT CONFUSE THIS WITH SPRAYGROUND.
